Local Democratic Club Hears From Greenbelt's Legislators

by James Giese

Senator Paul Pinsky and the three delegates from Legislative District 22, the district that includes Greenbelt, reported on legislative accomplishments and failures at the May 21 meeting of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club.

Pinsky first talked about the efforts to legalize slot machines in Maryland. A strong opponent of slots, the senator called the effort to legalize them a “phenomenally ludicrous idea” that will enable “four to five people to make a tremendous amount of money” and enable the state to find the easiest way to make quick money to solve its fiscal woes. Calling slot machines “much more addictive than any other forms of gambling,” he called both Governor Robert Ehrlich and Senate President Mike Miller wrong in their efforts to legalize them.

Pinsky advocated changing the tax structure in the state. Ehrlich has refused to authorize any increases in taxes. Pinsky would close tax loopholes and raise revenues. He would like to see the income tax become more progressive. It is now a flat percentage rate for most incomes. He would also close a tax loophole that permits corporations to avoid paying taxes by having offshore holdings. He said the governor did propose a bill to close this loophole but, now that it has been passed by the legislature, is considering vetoing his own bill. If vetoed, the legislature would have to override the veto by a super-majority vote of both houses in the next session.

Higher Education

The University of Maryland is becoming more and more recognized for its academic standards, Pinsky said. However, the cost of tuition is rising too rapidly – 18 percent over the last year-and-a-half, he said. The legislature passed a bill that would put a cap on tuition increases at the university of five percent a year, the added money needed to be raised by putting a surcharge on private corporations. The governor may veto this bill, he said.

Living Wage

The Maryland legislature became the first in the nation to pass a statewide living wage bill. This legislation would require contractors doing work for the state to pay all workers at least a living wage as defined by the law, an amount greater than a minimum wage, which Pinsky calls inadequate to support a family. He said that the governor had not approved that bill yet.

Canadian Drugs

Pinsky would like to see citizens be able to import drugs from Canada where they are cheaper. The cost of drugs in this country is increasing more than 10 percent a year. Although the U.S. government says that it is illegal to import drugs from Canada, it has not taken action to prevent people from doing so. The state of Minnesota has a website that lists state approved Canadian drug retailers, he said. There was a bill in the legislature about buying Canadian drugs that managed to pass the General Assembly in the last minutes of the session but did not make it in time for passage in the Senate.

Finances

Delegate Anne Healey then reported on state finances. The legislature approved a 23.6 billion dollar balanced budget, she said, but there is a structural deficit that has not been resolved. The needs of the state are enormous, she said. This year’s budget was balanced on some one-time adjustments and increasing fees. The governor did support measures to increase certain state fees, but did not support increasing taxes. Healey noted that the money raised from fees can only be used for specific purposes and not the general needs of the state.

Prince George’s got some increased funding out of the budget. In total, the county will receive $735.4 million in state funding. There will be $74 million more for public schools to fund the Thornton plan previously approved by the state.. However, other services may suffer because of Thornton. The budget provides nearly $19 million for public safety but this is up only 1.5 percent from the current year.

Delegate Tawanna Gaines told the audience that health care and human resources suffered the most from cuts to balance the budget. She noted that the legislature cannot make increases but can only cut proposed expenditure items.

Zoning Powers

Prince George’s is the only county in the state with municipalities that do not have their own planning and zoning authority, Gaines said. A bill that

Elementary School Honors Many Volunteer Helpers

by Mary Moien

Before the children started streaming through the doors at Greenbelt Elementary School on May 7, teachers and staff gathered to honor the many volunteers who have tutored this school year. Some 25 women and men were given a volunteer appreciation breakfast. Diane Eades, reading recovery teacher, and Principal Katherine Curl were among the organizers of the annual event.

This year, however, a surprise was in store for many of the volunteers. Staff had noted how many helpers were long-time volunteers and wanted a way to honor them. A plaque was designed with the names of the 18 current volunteers who have worked with students for at least three years.

One major focus is volunteering as a reading tutor. Other veterans and newcomers include math tutors, art teachers, classroom aides and PTA volunteers.

Volunteer David Lange has coordinated volunteer projects for six years.

The honored volunteers and the year they began serving are: 1987 – Barbara Simon; 1994 – Ed Griffin, Irene Havas; 1995 – Sonia Guiland-Collins; 1996 – Sylvia Lewis; 1997 – Lenore Algaze, David Lange; 1998 – Velvia Grantham, Aileen Sherman; 1999 – Bhameney Fishbeck, Diane Siegel; 2000 – David Haberman, Dan Hamlin, Mary Linstrom, Fran Ritter, Florence Thompson, Marsha Voigt and Dianne Wilkerson.

Lange noted that many volunteers came because of a series of articles in the Greenbelt News Review in recent years. Some are PTA members and others belong to OASIS, a group based at Hecht’s in Prince George’s Plaza that assists with reading as one of their activities. More volunteers, it was noted, are always welcome.

The New Electronic Voting Is It an Improvement?

by James Giese

Creating a paper record of votes on direct recording electronic voting machines is not as simple as some would have people believe. Nor would it assure greater accuracy in the counting of votes. That was the message brought to those attending the April 16 meeting of the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club by Carl R. Ruble, vice president of the Prince George’s County Board of Elections, and Maryland State Senator Paul Pinsky, whose legislative district includes the City of Greenbelt.

After Maryland officials decided to standardize voting procedures throughout the state and to use electronic voting machines and subsequently agreed to purchase the AccuVote-TS machines from Diebold Electronic Systems in time for the spring primary election this year, Dr. Aviel D.

Rubin provided a critique, known as the Hopkins study, that found it possible for an evil-minded person to tamper with the voting machine process and results. This has resulted in additional studies by RABA Technologies and the Department of Legislative Services, which employed Science Application International Corporation (SAIC) to perform a study. These studies found that there was much that could be done procedurally to assure the integrity of the voting process. In his talk, Ruble told of the steps being taken to protect the integrity of the election process. Because Maryland is only the second state to implement this type of voting equipment, there is little in the way of experience of others on which to rely.

Fighter Jets Over Greenbelt

On Tuesday, June 8 at approximately 6:30 p.m., nine F-15 fighter jets thundered across the skies over the Greenbelt Municipal outdoor pool. The nine F-15s were part of 21 fighter jets flying in formation from Andrews Air Force Base as a rehearsal for Friday’s procession bearing the body of former President Ronald Reagan to the U.S. Capitol.

Letters to the Editor

THANKS

Thank you to everyone who assisted with the Labor Day Festival's Basket Bingo last week. The event went very well. Thanks goes to the Recreation Department, the Greenbelt Co-op, Greenbelt Access TV, Greenbelt Community Church and St. Hugh's Church and School – all of whom played very important roles in making sure the event was a success. Thanks also to all of the individuals who helped work the bingo that night; their assistance was invaluable. It wouldn't have been possible without them. Thanks, as well, to all of the bingo players. Hopefully there were some local winners but regardless of that, we hope everyone had a great time! This was the first of many bingos the festival will be holding, so stay tuned!

Make Crescent Safe

How many memorials attached to telephone poles and trees will it take to make Crescent Road safe? There have been four deaths and five major accidents on a road where the speed limit is only 30 mph. All of these accidents have occurred between Northway and Greenhill Road. This is four deaths and five accidents too many. Crescent Road is being used as a cut through to avoid the Greenbelt Road and Kenilworth Avenue intersection. Vehicles that use Crescent Road do not observe the speed limit and if you do, others will pass you. The school zone which is 15 mph is never observed by the cars, Metro buses, school buses, etc. The cross walks which are clearly marked are seldom observed.

There are ways to stop the speeders on this road – (1) police presence, (2) speed cameras or (3) install stop signs at every intersecting road – Lastner Lane, Greenhill Road, Northway and Eastway. How many more deaths will it take to make Crescent Road safe?

Bicyclists Need Lights at Night

Open letter to all bicyclists and loved ones of bicyclists: You need lights on your bike if you ride at twilight. Twilight is the time after the sun sets, when it is not yet dark enough to be called night. This is a time when it becomes harder to see bicyclists. The reflectors that come on bicycles are not good enough to make them visible to cars and trucks when it starts to get dark.

Lights that shine to the front and to the rear of the bike are needed. I was reminded of this when I came upon three bicyclists at about 8:45 p.m. I was returning to Greenbelt on Edmonston Road/Kenilworth Ave. extended and was between Sunnyside Ave. and Cherrywood Lane, at the point where there are woods on both sides. The three bicyclists "appeared out of nowhere" – which means I didn't see them until I was right on them. Fortunately, they were on the other side of the street (going north). If you ride at twilight, please put lights on your bike.

Bloomsday Comes To Greenbelt

Bloomsday is coming to Greenbelt – this year is the 100th anniversary of the date on which James Joyce’s literary masterpiece, Ulysses, takes place. Anyone wishing to read should contact Deborah Taylor, Deborahtay@aol.com or 301-345-2485 by June 11. A good chapter-by-chapter summary of Ulysses is available online at www.rejoycedublin2004.com/joyce/detail. Come and listen or read as a bit of Dublin comes to Greenbelt’s own small town.

It’s a beautiful time of the year in Greenbelt and even those crazy cicadas are almost gone. Some of us will miss their high-pitched song and watching them crawl on our window screens. It’s amazing how all of us fit into nature’s plan for the universe, even 17-year cicadas.

The June birthdays will be celebrated on June 16 with a potluck lunch. Councilmember Rodney Roberts will speak on June 23 and we will play bingo on June 30. Joe Rimar will have a book signing on July 14 for his new book of poems, “Sands of Time.”

Travel coordinator Phyllis Budin still has seats on the August 5 trip to Atlantic City and there are openings on the July 8 trip to Hanover, Pa. The bus will leave at 7:45 a.m. on June 17 for Hershey, Pa.

What is Islam?

KNOW YOUR CREATOR

Do you feel depressed, distraught and lonely, like the world has forsaken you? Remember that there is always someone very near to you waiting for you to turn to Him. It's never too late. Our Creator says in the Quran: "When my servants ask thee concerning Me, I am indeed close (to them), I listen to the prayer of every caller when he calls on Me. Let them also with a will, listen to My call, and believe in Me, that they may walk in the right way."

—The Holy Quran 2:186

Area Schools Gain State Recognition

The Maryland State Department of Education has recognized Greenbelt Elementary School, Robert Goddard French Immersion-North and Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) for making gains in student academic performance. These Greenbelt-area schools were among 586 elementary, middle and high schools in Maryland recognized by the awards program, which is now a requirement of the federal No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act. The program marks the overall achievement of their students on the 2003 Maryland School Assessment and for improving the performance of special populations from 2002 to 2003. Special populations, identified under NCLB, include race/ethnicity, special education, limited English proficiency and those receiving free or reduced-price meals.

Monetary Rewards

Title I elementary and middle schools will share about $450,000 from State Title I funds, with each receiving $4,000. Non-Title I elementary and middle schools will share $1.2 million in state funds with each receiving just over $2,900. High schools will receive certificates of recognition only. Neither federal Title I funds nor state funds are permitted to be used for high schools. Greenbelt Elementary and Robert Goddard French Immersion each will receive $2,926.82. ERHS will receive a certificate.

“We applaud the efforts of our staff and our students. These schools deserve to be recognized for raising the achievement levels of all our students through good instructional practices,” said State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick.

About 25 percent of the schools are being recognized for overall achievement and 25 percent for showing improvement among all subgroups. Some schools demonstrated achievement in both areas. The financial awards can be used for activities and equipment to improve student performance but cannot be used for staff bonuses or salaries. The School Improvement Team in each school decides how the funds can best benefit the school.

City Acquires Observatory

The Greenbelt City Council on May 24 unanimously approved a Memorandum of Understanding between the city and the Greenbelt Astronomy Club for an observatory to be built on city land.

Revisions suggested by council at a council worksession in March have reportedly been incorporated. Details were reported in the April 1 issue of the News Review.

Signing of the agreement by Mayor Judith Davis and club president Matt Elliott passed ownership of the observatory from the club to the city. All costs are to be paid and recorded by the city with repayment by the club from authorized fund-raising activities. The club will be required to purchase liability insurance of $2 million annually with the city named as an additional insured. Community planner Kristen Ward said construction would begin immediately but getting permits may take more time than actual construction.

Club member Doug Love said that Greenbelt will be the only city in the country with a municipally-owned observatory.

However, there are those who argue that without a printed record, it is not possible to tell if a machine has been tampered with or malfunctioned and mis-cast the votes of persons using it. Thus, many advocate a process in which the machine will print out a record of each vote cast as well as record it electronically. The voter would then review the tally and, if found to be satisfactory, drop the paper receipt in a box. If the receipt does not agree with the voter's wishes, there would be a procedure for nullifying the vote cast and revoting. If there is a need to verify the accuracy of a machine or for a recount, election officials would have the paper receipts available to verify the voting machine's accuracy.

Problems

Pinsky told of legislation before this year's Maryland General Assembly that would provide for voting equipment to be equipped with printers to provide the paper trail. The legislation did pass the Senate but failed in the House. The first problem with the proposal was its cost - $15,000,000. The cost of the current equipment was $55,000,000 and the add-on printers would be an additional expense. The legislation authorized the governor to buy the equipment if the necessary money could be found. The state already has serious budget problems that have not been resolved.

Another problem is certification. Voting equipment must now be certified as acceptable under the federally enacted Help America Vote Act. No printing device has yet to be certified. Printers can malfunction, also. The RABA report also points out that the Federal Election Commission goal is to have less than one in 2,000,000 votes counted incorrectly with electronic systems. Paper ballots have never achieved such accuracy. They can be mis-read, smudged, lost or stolen, destroyed, etc.

A third problem is that organizations representing and lobbying for the handicapped are raising serious concerns as to the usefulness of paper to the visually impaired. The polling places can now be provided with special machines that offer sound through ear phones to vocally guide impaired voters through the ballot process in full privacy and without the aid of others. These organizations are opposing legislation for paper ballots backups.

"Good One"

Pinsky told the group that he believed the new voting system to be a good one. "Is it fool-proof? I don't know. Not even the experts can come to agreement on it," he said.

Ruble told the group of the various security measures in force in the county. Each precinct has one machine with an accumulator that will receive the tallies from the cards in each of the other machines and combine the tally for the precinct. Each machine also has a small printer (not capable of printing out the individual votes cast) that will print out the tally of votes cast for the machine at the end of the election day. In Prince George's County, these precinct votes were transmitted by telephone to a central computer at the Board of Elections where the county-wide vote was tallied. In Montgomery, the accumulators were transported to the election office for tallying, resulting in considerable delay in that county's vote tally.

In Prince George's, the machine accumulators also are brought to the board offices. Here their results are transferred into a second central computer to provide a second tally of the votes to verify accuracy.

Ruble noted that the governor (Department of Budget and Management) had employed SAIC to evaluate security. Most of the SAIC recommendations were already in place in the county and the rest are being done.

Procedure

There are 209 polling places and from 10 to 16 machines to a polling place - about one machine for every 200 voters. These machines are set up by technicians prior to the election one machine at a time, doing one polling place at a time. He noted that there are many different ballots depending on the precinct's location for county, legislative and congressional districts. There is an extensive check list to be followed. Following setup there is a test run to assure that everything is working properly. The test takes 25 to 30 minutes

Each precinct has a VIBS (Visually Impaired Ballot System) voting machine for use by the handicapped.

After testing, the machines are locked down. They are placed in a container with other machines for the precinct and secured by a cable. Upon setup at the precinct, if a machine is found not to be working, it can be replaced. At the last election there were problems with 27 machines, all of which could be resolved.

The votes are also recorded on each machine's hard drive. If a recount is necessary, the hard drive can show each vote cast (unrelated to who may have cast it). After the vote is finalized and certified the machine cards and the hard drive are erased so that they can be used again.

If there is a power outage, the machines will keep functioning for six hours on a backup battery. Most of a machine's weight is due to the battery.

Provisional Ballots

Ruble said that provisional ballots are now in force throughout the state. Anyone can come in and assert their right to vote even if their name is not on the registration list. For example, a voter may be on the list as having received an absentee ballot but claim that he or she failed to receive it. Such a person will receive a provisional ballot. The board reviews the provisional requests individually and if the claim is found to be valid the provisional ballot will be cast. It is possible to go to the wrong polling place and request a provisional ballot. However, that ballot may not have the correct offices listed for election because it is in a different district. If so, any vote for an incorrect office will be nullified when the provisional ballot is cast.

Judges Election

The state made an error in the setup for the election of circuit court judges in the primary. The machines instructed voters to vote for two of the three candidates instead of all three. Since three incumbent judges were running unopposed in a primary for three offices, the error did not affect the outcome of the election. All three judges will be placed on the ballot at the November election as the candidate of both Republican and Democratic parties, which is tantamount to their being elected to continue to serve as judges.

Questions

Mayor Judith Davis complained that the voter lists are not up to date. Are they no longer being purged, she asked. Ruble said the only way that a name can be removed is if the voter informs the board or the voter's name appears in a death notice. Formerly, names of persons who hadn't voted in two presidential elections could be removed from the registration list.

One person complained about the lack of a curtain at the voting machine and concern that others could see how he voted. Ruble noted that the screens cannot be read from off to the side. It was suggested that the machines needed to be arranged better in some polling places so that persons didn't walk past machines in use.

One woman quoted an article alleging that the president of Diebold had written a letter in which he committed himself to do all he could to assure President Bush's reelection in Ohio. Are Democrats concerned about how this distrust of voting machines will affect voter turnout?

Pinsky responded that he hadn't seen any report that anybody could break into the machines. That doesn't mean that there isn't that possibility, he said, but they have tried to consider every possible way of intrusion.

Ruble noted Diebold's extensive experience with building and operating ATM machines. "If you can count money, you can count votes," he said.

Carjacking

9300 block Edmonston Road, June 3, 11:52 p.m., a man reported that he had parked his car and as he was exiting his vehicle he was approached by another man, who produced a revolver and demanded the driver’s car keys and money. leased to parents pending action by the Juvenile Justice System.

Theft

Beltway Plaza Mall, May 29, a security officer observed a suspicious vehicle being driven in the parking lot. A computer check of the tag revealed that the vehicle had been reported stolen to the Prince George’s County Police. The vehicle was later observed in the 6000 block of Springhill Drive, where a man exited the vehicle and fled the scene. As a result of further investigation, an arrest warrant was obtained charging a nonresident man with theft of a motor vehicle, unauthorized use, obstructing and hindering and two counts of trespass.

5900 block Greenbelt Road, May 31, a nonresident woman was arrested and charged with two counts of theft. Police observed a suspicious occupied vehicle. A computer check revealed that the tag on the vehicle had been reported stolen to the Fairfax County Police. Located inside the vehicle was a Maryland temporary tag reported stolen to the Prince George’s County Police. The suspect was released on citation pending trial.

Vandalism

6900 block Hanover Parkway, May 28, 4:56 p.m., a woman reported that she was driving when an unknown person(s) broke out a passenger window, possibly with a BB type gun. She advised that the shot may have come from the area of Schrom Hills Park.

Drugs

7700 block Hanover Parkway, May 29, 12:42 a.m., a nonresident man was arrested and charged with possession of paraphernalia. Police responded to a report of several people possibly smoking marijuana in the courtyard area. A security officer detained one of the people and said that he observed the man in possession of paraphernalia commonly used to store marijuana. The suspect was released on citation pending trial.

6100 block Springhill Drive, May 30, 1:32 a.m., unknown person(s) used unknown means to unlock the front door of a residence. The door chain lock was on and entry was not fully gained.

Five vehicles were recovered, two by Greenbelt police with no arrests and three by other police departments with one adult arrest made.

she supported to give them planning authority never got out of committee, she said. By the end of the session she thought that she had the necessary 12 votes to get committee approval, but by then it was too late for the legislation to be successful in the last minute scrambling to pass bills before the mandatory deadline for the legislative session.

Health

The governor, county executive and county council all finally agreed on a five million dollar measure to keep the nearly insolvent Prince George’s Hospital operating, Gaines reported. She also noted successful legislation that will permit taxpayers to make a voluntary payment on their income tax form for aid for breast cancer research.

County Legislation

Councilmember Justin Ross, who was congratulated at introduction for becoming a first-time father of a baby girl, told of some local measures of interest. One bill will give the county the power to negotiate with developers on paying for needed school construction resulting from new developments. Another will expand the granting of tax credits for the renovation of historic properties to include up to a $50,000 credit for homes and up to $3,000,000 for commercial properties. This legislation will also make greater amounts of monies available to other areas of the state in addition to Baltimore, which has received 97 percent of the funds in the past. The credits are authorized until 2008.

Slot Referendum

John Hollbrooke of Greenbelt asked Pinsky about his views on proposals for a statewide referendum on slots. Pinsky said that there has been a lot of maneuvering to put one or another into a corner on the issue. He noted that a lot of people who supported slots did not support having them in their own counties. He felt that if there were a referendum it should require a majority in a county to favor slots for that county to acquire slots. He said he wasn’t sure how the county would vote on the matter. While a lot of church leaders have expressed opposition, some of the church members have indicated privately that they would support slots.

Gay Legislation

Lynn Doyle asked about anti- and pro-gay measures. Pinsky said that a bill that would permit one partner to make medical decisions for another lost by one vote in committee. He noted that this bill could have helped William Donald Schaefer, had he not been a former Governor, in being able to assist his long-time companion Hilda Mae Snoops when she became ill and unable to care for herself. He expected that anti-gay legislation would be proposed by some in future legislative sessions.

Ozone/Air Pollution Is Still a Problem

For the fifth year in a row Maryland has failed the American Lung Association’s annual clean air test. The association’s report, “State of the Air: 2004,” uses a new national surveillance network that for the first time measures particulate matter. High levels of microscopic, soot-like particles produced by power plant emissions, diesel exhaust and wood burning increase the risk of premature death. Maryland had three counties in the list of the nation’s counties with the greatest ozone pollution – Harford, Anne Arundel and Cecil. Prince George’s County, although not in the top 25 most-polluted counties, did show up as one of the state’s worst in the category of particle pollution.

Air pollution in the region has also been under review by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. In response to the settlement of a lawsuit brought by the environmental group Earthjustice, state and local governments are adopting new, more protective health standards for ground-level ozone. The new ozone standard – which measures ozone over an eight-hour period instead of over one hour – was issued in 1997 after research showed that longer-term exposure to lower levels of ozone can harm human health. Implementation was delayed by the recently settled court battle.

Deadlines for meeting the eight-hour ozone standard range from 2007 to 2021, depending on the severity of an area’s problem. Prince George’s County and the rest of the metropolitan Washington, D.C., area are listed as having “moderate” ozone pollution with a compliance deadline of June 2010.

The Washington, D.C., area remains obligated under previous court decisions to upgrade its pre-existing clean air plans to achieve an 18 percent pollution cut by 2005, stronger controls on industrial pollution and contingency measures to take effect if pollution is not reduced.

International Music Conference a Success

by Dr. C.V. Girija Vallabhan

An International conference on Indian music attracted many individuals from different parts of the United States and India who assembled in the Eleanor Roosevelt High School auditorium on May 8. "Music Transcends" above all barriers of human differences of religion, race or color was the theme of the conference put together by the Jayamangala School of Music and Dance. Participants sat with rapt attention all through the concert, where they could enjoy a symphony with musicians from both Indian and Western systems singing and playing south Indian classical compositions, describing the five seasons.

Instruments like cello, piano, western violin, guitar and drums on the side of Western artists and those like veena, violin, sitar, Indian bamboo flute, saxophone, mridangam, tabla, kanjira and ghatam on the Indian music side were played in unison. There were male and female vocalists from both systems.

One of the aims of the conference was to introduce and popularize Indian music to the western audience. T. R. Subramanyam formerly professor of music, Delhi University, gave an overall synopsis of Indian music. Other invited speakers included Dr. Samuel Magrill, professor of music, University of Central Oklahoma, who emphasized how Indian music can be transcribed into western music notation and presented some of his opera compositions using south Indian ragas. Another invited speaker, Dr. Mathew Allen, professor of music, Wheaton College, Norton, Mass., emphasized the intriguing role of music in Indian classical dances. Alif Laila, a sitar player from Bangladesh, demonstrated the role of sitar in the Indian classical music. The panel consisting of the above four speakers and a special invitee, Dr. Peter Westbrook, discussed the power of music to create world harmony. Music could transcend geographical limits, language barriers, religious and racial differences, they said.

The classical Indian songs for the final portion of the concert had been transcribed into western notation by Dr. Magrill and were performed by the western music participants. Also he was able to "tune in" collaboration of Jaya Bala, Shobha Subramanian, Sandhya Srinath and Srinath Bala and directed the song composed by Dr. Bala Nathan, the program director, praising Prince George's County.

The chief guests included His Excellency Rakesh Sood, chargé d'affairs, Embassy of India who spoke of the importance of conferences like this in the United States. Representing the office of the Prince George's County Executive, Michael Herman the chief of staff, spoke on the universality of music among people all over the world and declared May 8 as the Jayamangala day in the county.

The conference was conducted in collaboration with the InterFaith Conference of Metropolitan Washington, Multi-cultural affairs, Office of Community Relations, Prince George's County and the Embassy of India, Washington, D.C.

Greenbelt Race Gives to AHA

On April 22, Prince George's Running Club President Lucy Younes (left) and Race Coordinator Austin Conaty (middle) donated a $250 check to American Heart Association VP for Corporate Relations Jeff Witten. The Club's Greenbelt Wright Stuff 5k benefit race which raised the funds was run around Greenbelt Lake in December 2003. The donation was in memory of Joseph Patrick Conaty, Austin's father, who died of a heart attack in 2002.

Greenbelt Day Activities Fill the Weekend with Fun

Greenbelters, young and old, were treated to a plethora of activities designed to commemorate the 67th anniversary of the city. From the Folk and Blues Festival at Roosevelt Center, to the Artful Afternoon activities at the Community Center, to the Chautauqua sponsored by the Greenbelt Museum, to the Greenbelt Homes tour, the city was abuzz with creativity and entertainment. The abundance of activity and community spirit amplified why so many residents believe that Greenbelt is truly a great place to live.
